New voice HEATHER HIND releases her debut album HINDSIGHT

“Her songs have a timeless classic feel.....there is nothing superfluous, and every single note counts. Hind's multi-tracked harmonies are very fine throughout.”

Arts Editor of The Herald

Hindsight - the debut album by South African born Heather Hind - introduces a new, stunning voice.

Her lyrical songs, coupled with the beautiful arrangements of co-writer Malcolm Lindsay, weave stories of hope and heartache, with the power to make the listener stop and breathe a different air for a while.

The twelve new tracks on the new album offer an unexpected journey through highs and heartfelt lows, packing a powerful emotional punch, and are poignantly expressed through the compelling purity of Hind's vocals.

Hind's main collaborator on Hindsight is award-winning composer and established musician Malcolm Lindsay. Lindsay has written for a diverse range of bands, orchestras and individuals including collaborations with David Byrne, Deacon Blue, Willard Grant Conspiracy, The Delgados, RSNO and the Scottish Chamber Orchestra. His multi-layered arrangements stretch each of Hindsight's songs to a finely wrought expressive dimension, creating an album of genuinely rich and varied musicality.

Hindsight also includes a co-write with PJ Moore (formerly of the Blue Nile), along with four other songwriters.

The album was recorded and mixed in Glasgow, and mastered by Peerless chief engineer Jeff Lipton in Boston, USA. (Lipton is possibly best known for mastering Bon Ivor).

Heather Hind mini biog

Hind initially grew up in what is now called Hwange National Park, a protected wilderness area in Zimbabwe, moving to South Africa when she was a teenager. In her twenties she came to the UK, spending time on the Scottish Hebridean and Shetland isles. All of these places and her experiences within them, influence her songwriting and provide the source for many of her lyrics. In 2010 she embarked on a part time MMus in Songwriting at Bath Spa University, and as this neared completion, Hind was introduced to Lindsay through a mutual friend. They began a fruitful collaboration which led to the creation of Hindsight. Now based in London, Hind is currently gigging across the city to promote the new album.
